Donor # 4273 Interview Notes

Although born and raised in California, Donor 4273 could easily pass for a clean-cut, corn-feed country boy in his pressed shirt, khakis and loafers. One would easily describe Donor 4273 as an attractive guy. His thick, straight hair is bright blonde and has been that color since childhood, sans chemical assistance. His face sports a close shave, exposing his rosy cheeks and highlighting his bright blue eyes. He has small ears, thin, yet flattering lips and a small, well proportioned nose. Donor 4273 has been likened to actor Leonardo DiCaprio. I would agree, supplementing the description by saying the donor is a more muscular version of the actor with a lighter complexion.

Donor 4273 has a great connection with his mother, father and brother. Despite the fact that his parents are no longer married, he manages to have a close relationship with both of them; seeing each parent at least a few times a week. Some of his fondest memories with his brother include playing board games, building water pools with mud and riding dogs around the yard. Donor 4273 is also close with his his grandparents, with a particular affinity toward his paternal grandmother. "She goes to church and is a good cook. She is always in charge of Thanksgiving dinner and I can't wait to eat her famous garlic mashed potatoes", explains Donor 4273. Donor 4273 jokes that his grandmother's secret to maintaining her youthful competency is by marrying a younger man who keeps her physically active and healthy.

When asked, "What movie would you recommend to a child?" Donor 4273 quickly responded, "The Labyrinth". And, in affiliation to this response, the donor also added that he would recommend the recording artist, David Bowie, as a potential all-time favorite. When asked about some of his favorite activities as a child he explained that, in short, he was an adrenaline junkie and anything that would get his heart rate up was a potential hobby. Snowboarding, dirt biking and street biking were activities on the top of his list. He also loves to play percussion instruments and thoroughly loves the ocean.

Donor 4273 is a very conscientious person. He is interested in environmental issues and plans on devoting part of his career to the promotion of biodiesel through algae. Along with his environmental concerns, Donor 4273 is currently undertaking his EMT license and plans on becoming a firefighter. He says that he enjoys the physicality of the profession, as well as the freedom and the camaraderie.

Overall, Donor 4273 is an attractive, considerate guy. He has a gentle demeanor, a reliable ethic, an outstanding character and is a great choice for someone interested in choosing a donor in our Identity-Release® Program.
